September 3, 2015 @ 3:03pm

25 November 1957: Two anti-aircraft teams in action during the annual inspection of the Singapore Volunteer Corps by Major-General A.G. O'Carroll Scott, General Officer Commanding (G.O.C.) Singapore Base District. The G.O.C. and other high-ranking officers, who are watching the display, are in the background.

The country wouldn't be what it is today if not for the blood, sweat and tears dedicated through the years.

The journey which started with negotiations didn't stop after the independence announcement made on August 31, 1957, the battle to be a better nation continues until today.
