Ini termasuk pendidikan dan peperiksaan bahasa pertuturan/komunikasi para pekerja ladang, iaitu Bahasa Tamil, Telugu dan Melayu. Sebelum musim perang, peperiksaan ini dikelola oleh pihak kerajaan. Kini terpaksa diambil alih oleh persatuan. Peperiksaan Bahasa Tamil yang pertama telah dikelola oleh pengurus Broome Estate di Bangi, Mr. F.J. Pratt.

Perancangan bekalan elektrik bagi beberapa kawasan luar bandar termasuk Bangi. Antara faktor pencetusnya ialah permintaan bekalan elektrik yang semakin meningkat di kalangan pengguna awam.

CATATAN 1: Mulai pertengahan 1920-an sehingga menjelang tahun 1940, penggunaan peralatan elektrik harian semakin meluas dalam operasi perlombongan bijih timah.

Sumber: Disesuaikan daripada Report on the Administration of the Mines Department and on the Mining Industries, 1921-1939.

"IMPAK ELEKTRIK DALAM PERKEMBANGAN INDUSTRI BIJIH TIMAH DI SELANGOR DAN PERAK, 1927-1940").

Demikian juga di kalangan masyarakat awam ketika itu, yang mula menggunakan pelbagai peralatan elektrik dalam aktiviti harian mereka: "Ternyata perkembangan kemudahan bekalan elektrik membuatkan permintaan terhadap barang elektrik semakin meningkat sehingga membawa kepada penubuhan lebih banyak syarikat perniagaan. Penubuhan syarikat-syarikat perniagaan ini pula menjadi pelengkap kepada pembangunan kemudahan bekalan elektrik yang dibuat oleh pihak kerajaan dan syarikat swasta. Tenaga yang disediakan boleh dimanfaatkan sepenuhnya oleh penduduk tempatan dengan menggunakan barang elektrik dalam menjalankan kehidupan harian. Didapati tenaga elektrik yang dijual untuk kegunaan persendirian dan domestik mencatatkan peningkatan daripada 2,055,841 unit pada tahun 1929 kepada 13,084,845 unit menjelang tahun 1939. Di sebalik peningkatan tersebut, jelas menunjukkan penggunaan barang elektrik semakin mendapat tempat dalam kalangan penduduk tempatan. Secara tersiratnya, keadaan ini memberi keuntungan kepada pemilik syarikat perniagaan berasaskan elektrik." (Mohamad Khairul Anuar Mohd Rosli, Ahmad Kamal Ariffin Mohd Rus @ Jebat Volume 45 (2), December 2018:

"Perkhidmatan Bekalan Elektrik di Negeri-Negeri Melayu Bersekutu Sebelum Tahun 1940: Perkembangan dan Impak Ekonomi", m.s.38).

CATATAN 2: Kemungkinan ini adalah antara langkah awal perancangan pembekalan elektrik awam secara berpusat, sehingga tertubuhnya Central Electricity Board (CEB) pada tahun 1949: "Until the mid nineteen twenties, most generating plants were small and used a variety of fuel including low grade coal, local wood, charcoal and important oil as well as water power. As the rapid increase in electricity demands continued to manifest; large scale planning, huge sums of capital from overseas and hiring of foreign technical experts became essential. Hence, the Central Electricity Board (CEB) was established and came into operation on 1 September 1949. The Board was to become heir to three major projects considered by the Electricity Department following its re-establishment in April 1946: The Connaught Bridge Power Station, The Cameron Highlands Hydroelectric Project & The development of a National Grid. CEB became owner to 34 power stations with a generation capacity of 39.88 MW, including a steam power station in Bangsar with a capacity of 26.5 MW, a hydroelectric power station at Ulu Langat with a capacity of 2.28 MW as well as various diesel affairs with a total capacity of 11.1 MW. CEB also became owner to both transmission and distribution systems above and below ground valued at close to thirty million dollars, as well as the impressive list of 45,495 consumers and staff of 2,466. The age of private generators has come to an end, and all walks of life continue to enjoy fair share of electricity." (Tenaga Nasional Berhad:

1941-1945	Penaklukan Jepun di Malaya

"Penaklukan Jepun bermula dengan pendaratan tentera Jepun di Singora dan Patani, Thailand serta Kota Bahru, Kelantan pada 8 Disember 1941. Serangan Jepun ke atas Tanah Melayu dilakukan melalui tiga penjuru, iaitu dari utara melalui Jitra, Jalan Keroh-Grik dan melalui Pantai Timur. Pada 11 Januari 1942, Jepun menduduki Kuala Lumpur dan tentera Jepun terus mara untuk menakluki Kajang dan Klang. Berikutan kejatuhan pertahanan British di Singapura pada 15 Februari 1942, seluruh Tanah Melayu telah jatuh ke tangan Jepun. Pentadbiran tentera Jepun telah menyusun semula unit politik di wilayah itu dengan menjadikan Singapura sebagai pusat wilayah pentadbiran tentera dengan menggabungkan Negeri-negeri Selat, Negeri-negeri Melayu Bersekutu, Negeri-negeri Melayu Tidak Bersekutu dan Sumatera." Berikut adalah beberapa petikan catatan pengalaman warga Kajang ketika itu:-

- "Within a month of their landing, the Japanese soldiers had reached Kuala Lumpur. The people of Kajang had braced themselves for any eventuality. They had dug trenches in which to seek cover upon hearing the wailing of the ARP (Air Raid Precaution) siren, the harbinger of the aerial onslaught. The Japanese intended to bomb Kajang and their planes had flown several reconnaissances for that purpose. The much-anticipated bombing occurred on January 12, 1942. The target was of course the Kajang Railway Station at 15th Milestone, Reko Road. The intention was to interdict the British retreat to Singapore. Unfortunately, the bombs fell in the grounds of the cathedral-like Catholic Church which was just across the railway tracks in front of the Railway Station. It was badly damaged; the residence of the Infant Jesus Sisters in the Convent School ground was destroyed. The Japanese warplanes at the same time bombed the Rice Stockpile Center near the Railway Station and strafed the neighborhood. There were scores of civilian fatalities. Several dead bodies lay sprawled in the drains and on the stretch of Reko Road from the Sun Cinema (now a Buddhist Center) to the Kampung Bukit (Reko Road) Muslim Cemetery. There were a few dead bodies too in front of the Kajang English School building* near the Sun Cinema. Several brick houses which suffered the aerial attack had gaping holes punched by machine- gun bullets into their walls. These tell-tale signs were evident in the neighborhood in 1947 when this writer, aged nine, moved in with his parents to live in his uncle's house called the Sentosa at No 11 Reko Road or Kampung Bukit, Kajang(now non-existent). The house had undergone some repairs and had a fresh coat of paint. It was a walk away to the Rice Stockpile Center. Before the outbreak of the War, it was a private school known as the Kajang English School*. As far as it could be ascertained, it had not suffered any significant damage. ... * As recounted by Kang Buang (deceased) a long-time resident of Kajang and an alumnus of Kajang English School— Han.Kamalbahrin Lubis." (Hanafiah Lubis, July 20, 2010:

"THE JAPANESE INTERREGNUM-TOA SEINEN GAKKO; IKENOBU SAN, TSUBOCHI SANAND NIPPON-GO").

- "During the Japanese Occupation, Japanese warplanes bombed Kajang on 12 January 1942; their target was the old railway station but unfortunately the bombs landed on the church and school compound. The church was damaged but somehow the three stained glass window panels suffered only minor damage. Today, the panels can be seen at the back of the altar." (Eric Lim, July 15, 2020:

"History of Kajang").

Ketika pendudukan Jepun di Kajang, Sekolah Tinggi Kajang telah dijadikan markas tentera Jepun bagi daerah Ulu Langat: "The Japanese bombing raid of Kajang Town mercifully, didn't cause any significant damage to the Kajang High School. Perhaps it was not considered legitimate target on the basis of their assessment of intelligence reports from their espionage network operating from the Japanese Photo Studios in Jalan Tukang. On entering Kajang after the British and Commonwealth troops had fled, the Japanese army seized the Kajang High School and turned it as the Headquarters of the Japanese Imperial Army in the District of Ulu Langat. ... As the Head quarters of the Japanese Imperial Army in Ulu Langat, the name of the school was changed to TOA SEINEN GAKKO. It was no longer known by its old British colonial name. Everything associated with British Colonialism and Western Culture in the school was forthwith eliminated and prohibited. Of course the English Language, the standard-bearer of Western Culture, was proscribed and supplanted with the language of the new masters- NIPPON-GO. ... As the Kajang Catholic Church had suffered "collateral damage" due to the Japanese bombing of the Railway Station, the Japanese army ordered the closure of the Kajang Convent. The Kajang High School (TOA SEINEN GAKKO) classes in the Convent were ordered to shift to a new location- a movie house called the Queen's Theater (later known as National Theater) on the bank of Sg. Jeluk just a stone's throw from the Convent. ... The Japanese classes and Thaiso were held in the morning and afternoon. The Japanese Language was taught to the exclusion of other subjects. In between classes, they had to do gardening on vacant plots of land on the banks of Sg. Jeluk. In this way, pupils were taught self-reliance. Such simple agriculture pursuit in the backyard were naively perceived to be the way to achieve self-sufficiency in food production. The Allied naval blockade of the Malay Peninsula had brought unprecedeted hardship and deprivation among the population. Rice was extremely difficult to get, not mention other needs. The long dark nights and the nightmare of the Japanese Interregnum came to an end when the Atom Bombs fell on Japan. After the defeat of the Japanese, Kajang High School was reopened on September 27, 1945." (Hanafiah Lubis, July 20, 2010:

Laporan kejadian amuk di atas keretapi Singapura-KL sejurus selepas stesen Bangi. Pengamuk kemudiannya terjun dari keretapi kira-kira 4 batu dari Kajang, di sekitar Sungai Tangkas, lalu mengamuk pula di sebuah rumah kongsi di bawah sebuah jambatan berdekatan landasan. Amukan turut berlaku di Ladang Sungai Tangkas, kira-kira 2 batu dari situ. Tragedi ini telah mengorbankan sejumlah 9 orang, manakala 12 lagi cedera. Pengamuk tersebut, seorang Banjar bernama Mohamed Arsat/Upoh/Utoh/Makaran/Mat Taram bin Saal, adalah penumpang keretapi, bersama anak dan isterinya. Menurut isterinya, mereka telah menjual rumah dan tanah mereka di Bagan Terap, Teluk Anson (Teluk Intan). Berbekalkan hasil jualan sebanyak $200, mereka merancang untuk ke kampung mereka di Pulau Tunggal, Sumatera. Mereka menaiki bas ke Bidor, kemudiannya naik keretapi ke Singapura. Malangnya tambang kapal dari Singapura ke Pulau Tunggal ialah $40 setiap seorang, dan wang mereka tidak mencukupi. Mereka terpaksa kembali ke Teluk Anson, dengan menaiki bas ke Labis, dan kemudiannya menaiki keretapi ini. Selepas kejadian, pengamuk telah melarikan diri ke Teluk Anson, dan membuat laporan kehilangan anak isteri di Sabak Bernam. Di situ beliau tertangkap dan dikenalpasti oleh saksi. Beliau diadili di mahkamah pada Mei 1948, dan dihukum sebagai tidak siuman lalu ditempatkan di hospital kesihatan jiwa di Tanjung Rambutan.

Salah seorang pemimpin MPAJA sejak penaklukan Jepun di Malaya, Lau Yew, adalah antara yang terbunuh dalam serangan balas pihak polis dalam serangan hendap tentera Komunis di sekitar Jalan

Kajang-Semenyih, kira-kira sebatu dari Kajang: "Lau Yew, 30-year old leader of the MPAJA in Malaya, was shot dead by police this morning in one of the grimdest, short-range battles of the present campaign against terrorists. Outnumbered, 14 men of a special assault squad for the Selangor C.I.D., who had to withdraw twice as well as conserve ammunition, fought off between 30 and 50 well-armed insurgents who had surprised them in the jungle one mile beyond Kajang."

CATATAN 1: Menurut laporan Australian Associated Press-Reuter, pihak polis menyerbu sebuah rumah di ladang berdekatan Kajang dan terus membunuh 2 pemimpin pihak Komunis, termasuk Lau Yew: "Two Communist leaders were among 11 terrorists killed by police in a dawn gun battle on a rubber estate near Kajang, 14 miles south of Kuala Lumpur today. One of the men was Lau Yew, 30-year old Chinese president of the Malayan Peoples' Anti-Japanese Army, who marched with the Malayan contingent in the Victory Parade in London in 1946. The other is believed to have been the leader of the Johore rebels. The battle began when 20 detectives and police, led by a British officer, stormed a house on the estate, killed the two leaders and captured one man and five Chinese women. Thirty Communists, armed with Bren and Sten guns and grenades, counter-attacked and forced the police to withdraw. ... The second charge was successful and the terrorists withdrew, leaving 11 dead, including their leaders, the five Chinese women prisoners, who were killed by crossfire, and four others. ... Police believe that the house was either the headquarters of the Selangor Branch of the MPAJA or the main headquarters of the Malayan Peoples Anti-British Army. ... The only surviving prisoner was an Indonesian Malay who said he was an ex-member of the Malay Regiment and is believed to have been an instructor for the terrorists." (

- (4) Sepasukan polis dan askar British ditempatkan di keempat-empat jalan masuk ke pekan Semenyih mulai jam 4.30 pagi pada 25 Disember itu. Semua lalulintas keluar-masuk disekat (kemudiannya dilengongkan melalui Bangi). Pada pukul 6.30 pagi, serangan udara dilancarkan di sekitar lokasi markas komunis di atas, diikuti serangan susulan oleh pasukan polis dan tentera yang bergerak dari keempat-empat penjuru tersebut, meliputi 9 buah estet getah berkeluasan 45 batu persegi di sekitar Semenyih: "This large operation, in which several hundred men of the 26th Field Regiment, Royal Artillery - now turned infantry - and the Police took part, set into motion at 4.30 this morning when the gunners and the Police moved into positions on the four approach roads to Semenyih. As we were waiting at the Kajang-Semenyih junction for the next move forward, three Spitfires buzzed into view at 6.30. It was a matter of moments before the deep rattle of the machine guns and deeper notes of cannons were heard, followed by the explosions of rockets."

"The sweep covered an area of 45 square miles of the Semenyih river valley district, notorious for its insurgents. By dusk dead-line today, nearly 35 square miles of this defined bad area had been covered by the Army. About 16 huts, where insurgents are alleged to have lived or been harboured, were set on fire by the Army and Police in the course of their comb-out."

- (5) Pertempuran paling sengit berlaku di sekitar kawasan lombong di selatan Sungai Semenyih: "The most difficult operation reported was in the tin mining area south of Semenyih River, where the Army found most of the squatters' huts deserted. ... The arrest of the gunman came after a difficult chase through Chinese-owned tin mining territory north of the Semenyih-Broga Road. He was caught after having first escaped the Army cordon that closed around his house. The captured man had a rifle and 45 rounds of ammunition."
- Pasukan Komunis kemudiannya dipercayai berundur ke kawasan hutan di sebelah barat Semenyih: "An army officer said after today's sweep that he believed the insurgents in the territory were now retreating to hide-outs further west in the jungle country or endeavouring to infiltrate the Army's advancing line".

"Saw this photo at exhibition on 70 years anniversary of Emergency Declaration. I have a similar photo which was carried in the newspaper report. British Army and police raided Sungai Jelok villages (Lao Kong & Sin Kong) in Kajang. A mere 30 minute excavation notice was given and the villages were burnt down. This cruel and brutal tactic employed by the British colonialist had caused unaccounted losses and homeless to hundreds of villagers." 1949-02-05: Perihal Setinggan Cina

Perihal masyarakat setinggan Cina di pinggir hutan Malaya, sejarah keberadaan dan pengalaman mereka, yang menjadi faktor kecenderungan mereka terhadap ideologi komunisme:-

- 1920-an (Selepas Perang Dunia Pertama): Lonjakan industri getah dan timah: syarikat-syarikat berkaitan berkembang pesat di Malaya, membawa masuk ribuan buruh dari India dan Cina.
- 1931-1932: Kejatuhan mendadak harga getah dan timah. Banyak ladang dan lombong ditutup, para buruhnya ditinggalkan lalu terkandas di sini akibat hilang pendapatan. Mereka menyara hidup dengan bercucuk tanam di ladang dan lombong tinggal. Masyarakat setinggan sebegini mula berkembang.
- 1933-1940: Harga getah dan timah beransur pulih. Syarikat kembali ke ladang dan lombong mereka, dan terpaksa mengambil penghuni setinggan bekerja, di samping meneruskan perkebunan mereka. Sementara itu, berlaku perang saudara di tanah besar Cina di antara pihak komunis dan nasionalis, mencetus pertambahan pelarian ke Malaya, lalu mengembangkan lagi populasi masyarakat setinggan di sini.
- 1941-1945: Penaklukan Jepun ke atas Malaya. Ramai pekerja hilang mata pencarian, lalu turut serta bercucuk tanam, antaranya bersama masyarakat setinggan Cina ini. Pihak Jepun menggalakkannya, sebagai punca pemerasan bekalan makanan. Namun tak semena-mena, petempatan mereka mula menjadi tempat persembunyian para pemberontak gerila yang menentang pihak Jepun, dan mendapat sokongan masyarakat yang tertindas, terutamanya di kalangan anak muda. Pimpinan gerila komunis dari tanah besar Cina mula menyusup masuk. Di samping mengepalai pemberontakan ke atas Jepun, mereka turut membuat persediaan untuk peringkat selepasnya.
- 1946-1949: Kesan ekonomi pasca Jepun menyebabkan kos sara hidup meningkat. Ramai memilih untuk kekal sebagai petani setinggan. Pihak komunis mula bertindak memulakan pemberontakan terhadap pemerintah. Sebahagian masyarakat setinggan menyokong. Sebahagian lagi menghadapi tekanan dari pihak komunis, lalu terpaksa menjadi pembekal makanan dan maklumat, demi kelangsungan hidup dan keselamatan keluarga mereka. Dalam masa yang sama, mereka turut mendapat tekanan dari pihak pemerintah yang memaksakan sokongan terhadap mereka. Padahal dianggarkan 95% bekalan makanan seluruh Malaya dan Singapura, bergantung kepada hasil tanaman dan ternakan mereka. Antaranya, warga setinggan Bangi turut membekalkan makanan untuk warga Kuala Lumpur.

They have been told they must leave their homes, but for a moment, the children forget the drama around them to face the camera.

Antara warga setinggan Cina yang sedang dipindahkan.

CATATAN 1: Perihal ekonomi Malaya sebelum, ketika, dan selepas penaklukan Jepun: “Malaya’s resources would have been a significant asset had Japan succeeded in developing the East Asian economic sphere, but in 1942 they were a liability because the large workforces employed on plantations and mines were thrown out of work, and became a potential source of unrest and resistance. By the end of 1943 the Japanese administration was absorbing surplus labour to work on military construction projects, but these jobs did little to alleviate growing economic distress. Moreover, the loss of international trade resulted in a massive shortfall in government revenues, and when the Japanese administration responded by printing currency notes to cover expenses, the predictable result was runaway inflation.” (Paul H. Kratoska:

CATATAN 2: Kira-kira setahun selepas ini, pihak British menjalankan operasi besar-besaran di seluruh Malaya, bagi memindahkan masyarakat setinggan Cina ini ke perkampungan baru yang dirancang dan dibina berdekatan bandar, khusus untuk memutuskan hubungan mereka dengan kubu-kubu tentera gerila komunis di pinggir hutan (1951-03-14: Perkampungan Baru).
